A few days ago, a meteorite struck down a few miles outside a small town. And now...the geography in the area is starting to change...

Chapter 2 by ArchAngel

As she did her early morning chores about the farm, Zoe took a deep breath of clean fresh air. The hens got quite excited as she approached, they knew it was feeding time. She stooped with the bag of grain and paused in surprise. Red nettles were growing in clumps surrounding the coop, she had never seen anything like it. She straightened and looked around. The nettles formed a red carpet trailing away across the field towards Benyon Woods.

Over towards town, Davey still had his head buried beneath his pillow. "Davey, it's your turn to walk the dog this morning", his Mom called up. Grudgingly he flung himself out of bed and grabbed some clothes from the floor. His pitbull, Mason, started jumping up his legs. "Okay boy, okay, let me grab my running shoes and then it's walkies." Mason went crazy, dancing in circles.

Once outside, Mason went streaking up the country path with Davey trailing along behind. While most of his attention was focused on his phone, he glanced up now and then to check on Mason. After half a mile he noticed the trees overhanging the path were leaking a sticky yellow sap, and along the branches it had hardened into gently glowing globules, just like fairy lights. It was one of the most amazing sights Davey had ever seen. He quickly held up his phone and started taking photos in all directions.
